

Excelsior College Partnership

When you take McDonald's management training courses, you are that much closer to earning an associate or bachelor's degree from Excelsior College.

On your path to restaurant manager, your McDonald's training courses may advance you more than one-third the way toward completion of an associate (2-year) degree.

Your DM Shared course could be equal to one college class.

McDonald's TCC and TDP courses may be equal to two college classes.

When you complete MMD Advanced courses, you could lower your remaining degree requirements by up to 9 credits.

Associate in Applied Science in Administrative/ Management Studies (60 credits)

Bachelor of Professional Studies in Business and Management (120 credits)

Estimated credits for transfer are based on ACE-evaluated recommendations for current versions of McDonald's training courses (As of: August 15, 2014). ACE credit recommendations for previous versions of McDonald's training courses may differ in the number and classification of degree credits. Prospective students must provide an ACE transcript to Excelsior College Admissions to determine the actual number of transfer credits from McDonald's training courses into their selected business degree program.

Additional transfer credits may come from other McDonald's training courses, not listed above, or from acceptable examinations and courses taken from other colleges/universities.

Enrolled students are required to take a minimum of 12 credits from Excelsior College to qualify for partner pricing.
