South Carolina Department of Juvenile Justice

Description of Training Organization

The South Carolina Department of Juvenile Justice (DJJ), a state cabinet agency, is responsible for providing rehabilitation and custodial care for the state's juveniles who are on probation, incarcerated, or on parole for a criminal or status offense. DJJ is organized within four divisions and two support offices. The following information highlights the agency's responsibilities and organizational structure.

DIVISION OF COMMUNITY SERVICES

The Division of Community Services is responsible for a wide range of programs and services to juveniles and their families. Direct services are provided to juveniles and their families in the community through 43 county offices, servicing all 46 counties in the state. Case managers are involved with juveniles from the moment they enter the system until they complete probation and/or parole. In addition, they conduct detention screenings and intake interviews, complete risk/needs assessments, and make recommendations to the family court judges regarding case disposition. They also coordinate case diversion and supervise juveniles on probation or parole.

Additional support services are available to the community through collaboration or partnership with the family court system, schools, and local organizations throughout South Carolina. The Juvenile Arbitration Program, for example, works through solicitors' offices in 13 judicial circuits to utilize community volunteers who, after being approved and trained by the Solicitors' Office, act as arbitrators in the resolution of cases involving non-violent first-time criminal offenders.

DJJ has also embraced the restorative justice model and established a Victim Services Program (VSP), which is responsible for contacting victims of juvenile crime prior to making disposition recommendations, informing victims of any post-adjudicatory hearing or juvenile release or transfer, referring victims to community resources, and advocating on behalf of victims.

DJJ also provides alternative treatment programs for nonviolent juvenile offenders, including:

• Family preservation programs - empower parents with skills and resources needed to raise their children.
• Interstate compact - arranges for supervision of delinquent youth who move to or from South Carolina.
• Therapeutic foster care - helps juveniles overcome a variety of emotional and behavioral problems within a family setting.
• Community Residence Programs - specialized programs that offer education, skill building, and residential services.

The Office of Consultation and Evaluation Services is responsible for conducting psychological evaluations and consulting with case managers about individual cases. The psychologists are also charged with performing pre-waiver (transfer) evaluations for those youths that are being considered for waiver to General Sessions Court (stand trial as an adult).

DJJ also operates an array of residential services for juveniles in the community, including three secure evaluation centers, several group homes, and a pretrial detention center. The evaluation centers provide court-ordered evaluations of adjudicated juveniles prior to final disposition of their cases. Each facility provides comprehensive psychological, social, and educational assessments to guide the court's disposition of cases. By law, the length of stay cannot exceed 45 days. DJJ also operates a pretrial Detention Center, which serves juveniles from 44 of South Carolina's 46 counties. (Richland and Charleston counties operate their own juvenile pretrial detention facilities). Some DJJ group homes also serve as alternative placement for nonviolent juvenile offenders.

DIVISION OF REHABILITATIVE SERVICES

The Division of Rehabilitative Services is made up of three campuses within the Broad River Road Complex (BRRC) that provide juveniles committed by the family courts with around-the-clock custodial care and individualized treatment and rehabilitation. Campuses provide on-site:

• Education services through an independent school district;
• Psychological and social work services by licensed clinical staff;
• Medical/dental and mental health care services through licensed practitioners and medical facilities;
• Psychiatric services provided by contracted licensed practitioners;
• Custodial care by certified correctional staff; -recreational activities by trained staff; and -religious services by certified clinical chaplains.

DIVISION OF EDUCATIONAL SERVICES

DJJ operates its own school district with academic programs that are fully accredited by the South Carolina Department of Education. The juveniles committed to DJJ can earn either a high school diploma or a GED. The agency's school district offers educational programs in Columbia at Birchwood High School, Birchwood Middle School, Willow Lane High School, and Willow Lane Middle School. Other satellite programs attached to these two schools are operated at DJJ's three regional evaluation centers, as well as the agency's Detention Center.

Private school programs are also available at community residence programs located throughout the state. Additionally, the district offers vocational courses, extensive special education services, and the nation's first Army JROTC and Communities in Schools (CIS) programs in a juvenile correctional facility setting.

DIVISION OF ADMINISTRATIVE SERVICES

DJJ's Division of Administrative Services provides a broad array of services to department personnel that are the underpinning for the day-to-day operations of the agency. The division is comprised of the following offices: Fiscal Affairs, Human Resources. Information Technology, Medicaid Administration, Staff Development and Training, and Support Services.

OFFICE OF POLICY AND PLANNING

The Office of Policy and Planning provides support to the divisions through programs and grants development, research and statistics, and planning and evaluation. The office's mission is to develop departmental efforts to strategically plan for agency growth, as well as to provide necessary information to effectively manage the agency's resources for quality service delivery.

Essential functions of the office include the promotion of best practices as evidenced in research and evaluation; the continuous improvement of programs and services; the promotion of data-based decision making by DJJ staff and agency stakeholders through publication of statistical analysis and trends in juvenile crime; the development of tools and technologies to improve the department's performance and efficiency; and long-term, strategic planning.
OFFICE OF THE INSPECTOR GENERAL

DJJ's Inspector General ensures compliance with applicable state and federal laws, regulations, and policies and to promote professional accountability within the agency. Functions of the Office of Inspector General include public safety, internal affairs, internal audits, compliance and inspection, and juvenile and family relations.

The Event Reporting Management Information System (ERMIS), a state-of-the-art computer system managed by the Office of the Inspector General, ensures the comprehensive tracking, reporting, and managing of events occurring within the agency on a statewide basis 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. Monthly reports of specific events are reported to the State Law Enforcement Division.

In its juvenile and family relations function, the office advocates on behalf of DJJ juveniles and families by addressing juvenile and family concerns or questions, representing their rights, conducting disciplinary hearings and inviting family involvement throughout a juvenile's rehabilitative progress.

Description of Visit

From April 19-20, 2006, three representatives of Criminal Justice Training Assessment conducted a site visit to the South Carolina Department of Juvenile Justice’s Juvenile Correctional Officer Basic Training, Group Home Basic Training, Community Services Basic Training, and Supervisory Training and Leadership Development programs. On the first morning (Wednesday, April 19, 2006), the team assembled at the South Carolina Department of Juvenile Justice Training Academy. Following a brief organizational meeting and introductions to the academy staff, the assessment team was shown to the room with access all the necessary materials and to begin the assessment process.

The team determined that the morning of the first day would be spent organizing the various subject modules of the recruit training program into familiar college course content areas. By mid-morning the course areas were discussed and then assigned to a specific faculty member to begin reviewing. In the afternoon the team finished reviewing assigned materials.

The above list of courses was developed from a list of subjects mandated by South Carolina Criminal Justice Training Academy and from the supplemental subject areas included in the training programs by the South Carolina Department of Juvenile Justice.

The team began the second day by completing the assessment of materials and then reviewing the recommendations to ensure that everyone was in agreement. At midday, the team conducted an exit-interview/debrief with the staff and administration of the training academy.
